U.S.-AFRICA BUSINESS SUMMIT

BIENNIAL U.S.-AFRICA BUSINESS SUMMIT

October 5-7, 2011
Washington, DC

Established in 1997, The Corporate Council on Africa's (CCA) U.S.-Africa Business Summit is now regarded as essential for anyone looking to develop and strengthen relationships with senior government and corporate leaders charged with enhancing and increasing business operations on the continent.

CCA has built a reputation for producing premier events based on access to and relationships with key private sector leaders from the U.S. and Africa. This three-day event will provide comprehensive information on the latest trade and investment opportunities across Africa's most promising sectors, including:

agribusiness, natural resources development, infrastructure, energy, power, health, security, and good and services. You will have the opportunity to network with key African and U.S. private sector and government leaders, identify specific growth areas and hear detailed information about projects that are ripe for investment. Discover the latest financing options, and meet potential business partners, as well as numerous heads of state and key government officials. The Summit has been hosted in several cities over the years, including Baltimore, Houston, Philadelphia, Cape Town, and is now returning to Washington, DC for the fourth time.

The African continent is among the fastest-growing economic regions in the world, attracting foreign direct investment from businesses small to large from around the globe. According to the Harvard Business Review, Africa and Asia were the only continents to grow during the recent economic recession. Africa's growth rate increased to nearly 5% in 2010 and is likely to reach 5.2% in 2011. Africa offers a higher return on investment than any other emerging market, according to UN data; and is home to a tremendous market of more than 900 million potential consumers. This reliable growth is due not only to the wealth of opportunities available in Africa, but also due to its continued efforts for greater political stability and an unprecedented level of government reform to attract foreign investment. Africa has proven itself to be an essential asset for any company.

"The 2009 U.S.-Africa Business Summit was an amazing line up of very high powered and engaged decision makers and administration supporters. All info was highly relevant and interesting and served to further the business and trade development between US corporations/businesses and African countries. Spot on!"
